desperate battle which took place between Sheriff Moomawas deputies and the mob of lynchers at Bakersville, Mitchell County, this State, Calcin Shipes and the Whitsons have been lynched, but the vengeance of the mob cost at least thirty other lives. The names of those of the Sheriff's posse who are known to have been killed are:

Tom Breckes, Tom Hale, George Hallifield, Emer Johnson, Robert Jones, Wallace Laws, Nathan Pannel, William Reed, Dan Ritchie, Philip Sans, James Williams.

BERTHA LAUS'S CASE HELD OVER.

The little company split up into three parts, thirty-four. one remaining in the jall and the other two the main building, Winchesters were loaded and the wait for the final struggle began. Grand Jury's Expected Presentment The men were not long in sustense.

About sundown the first attack was made.

At least 500 armed men marched up the road, and then with a nowl broke on a run for the jail. The garrison was ready for them. "Halt, or I'll give the order to fire?" sang out from Sherill Mooman's mouth. No attention was paid to the warning. "Fire?" rate out the order, and seventy-five rifles poured a direct and flanking hall of verifies boured a direct and manking half of aliets into the determined spichers. They avered a moment as a score of them went win, but with steadhloses of veterans closed p their ranks and rushed forward again oder the leadership of a gigantic moun-man, who urged them forward with an old assisting very

A few revolver shots, 100 bed rifles and all was over. The deputies, their leader, sheriff Moomaws, mortally fided, were in the hands of the mich, and yone of them was looking down the muziat least three Winchesters. There was the for further resistance, and the fate from murderers was sealed.

without waiting to pick up the dead or be for the wounded, the mob made a rush erre for the wounded, the mob made a rush at the dor for the jall, and it went down before the shoulders of a score of stalwart men. The prisoners were reached. They were the only ones in the jall, and the mob had no ir uble in breaking down the train cells. Half dead with fear, the cubrits were dragged out late the open air, where ropes were placed a cand their necks, with a hundred men, mad with the thirst for blood, at the end of cach. The wretches were dragged over the lee exceed rocks to a place of woodland half a bule away. Behind them followed the remainder of the mob, firing at the prostrate forms at every step. In the little inclosure and on the roadbed in front of the jail twenty-five bodies were found, and in the three buildings eight more were rigid in death. About thirty others were wounded, some of them fatally, among these being galiant sheriff Moomaws, who was shot the through the chest and three times through the abdomen.

Nothing definite is known of the wounded, as bakersville is miles away from; a telegraph office, and all news brough to this point or John on thy, in Tennessee, comes by carrier. There the first news was received four more did the sheriff is posse are reported deal and the more of the most.

As far as they are concerned the case is closed, as both the Sheriff's posse and the mob are regarded as having done their duty in dying with their boots on for their principles.

Instead of dispersing, as was expected, the mob remained upon the groun. The scattered handful of the Sheriff's posse also remained under arms and was rapidly reinforced. All through the morning the crowd continued to receive accessions to its ranks, and by noon the party numbered about 500 to 600 men.
